1.2. Definitions

personal data	Any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person (‘data subject’); an identifiable natural person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that natural person.
processing:	Any operation or set of operations which is performed on personal data or on sets of personal data, whether or not by automated means, such as collection, recording, organisation, structuring, storage, adaptation or alteration, retrieval, consultation, use, disclosure by transmission, dissemination or otherwise making available, alignment or combination, restriction, erasure or destruction.
controller:	The natural or legal person, public authority, agency or other body which, alone or jointly with others, determines the purposes and means of the processing of personal data.
processor:	A natural or legal person, public authority, agency or other body which processes personal data on behalf of the controller.

recipient:	A natural or legal person, public authority, agency or another body, to which the personal data are disclosed, whether a third party or not. Public authorities which may receive personal data in the framework of a particular inquiry in accordance with Union or Member State law shall not be regarded as recipients.
consent of the data subject:	Any freely given, specific, informed and unambiguous indication of the data subject's wishes by which he or she, by a statement or by a clear affirmative action, signifies agreement to the processing of personal data relating to him or her.
personal data breach:	A breach of security leading to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to, personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed.
website:	barabasstonedesign.com

The Data Controller's processing activities are based on voluntary consent, legitimate interest, contract, or legal obligation. Where processing is based on voluntary consent, data subjects may withdraw their consent at any stage of the processing.

In certain cases, applicable law requires the processing, storage or transfer of certain categories of data, of which the Data Controller shall separately notify the data subjects.

Please note: if you provide personal data of another person, it is your obligation and responsibility to obtain that person's consent.

By providing an email address or other personal data, the person providing such data accepts responsibility for ensuring that only they use the services under that email address or data. All liability associated with a provided email address or dataset rests solely with the person who provided it.

The Data Controller declares that it carries out no automated decision-making or profiling in connection with the personal data it processes.

The Data Controller's processing activities are governed in particular, but not exclusively, by the following legislation:

- Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 April 2016 (GDPR)
- Act CXII of 2011 on the Right to Informational Self-Determination and Freedom of Information (Hungarian "Info Act")

3. Rights of Data Subjects

The data subject is entitled to request from the Data Controller:

- information about the circumstances of processing;
- rectification of personal data or – in cases defined by the GDPR – erasure;
- restriction of processing;
- information about recipients to whom personal data have been disclosed following rectification, erasure or restriction;
- access to their personal data;
- exercise of the right to data portability (in cases defined by the GDPR);
- to object to processing based on legitimate interest.

Right to information (GDPR Articles 13–14)	The data subject is entitled to receive information in an intelligible form about the essential circumstances of processing. This right is given effect by the present Privacy Notice.
Right of access (GDPR Article 15)	The data subject may be informed whether the Data Controller processes personal data relating to them; if so, they may access such data and learn the purposes, planned retention period, possible recipients, data transfers and other essential circumstances of the processing.
Right to rectification (GDPR Article 16)	If personal data are inaccurate, incorrect or incomplete, the data subject may request the Data Controller to correct or supplement them within the scope of the processing purpose.
Right to erasure (GDPR Article 17)	The data subject may request erasure of their personal data (unless restricted by law) where: the data are no longer necessary for the original purpose; consent has been withdrawn and no other legal basis exists; the data subject objects and no overriding legitimate grounds exist; processing is for direct marketing and the data subject objects; processing is unlawful; or erasure is required by law. The right to erasure is limited by the right to freedom of expression and information. Where consent is the sole legal basis and is withdrawn, the Data Controller shall permanently erase the personal data.
Right to restriction of processing (GDPR Article 18)	The data subject may request restriction of processing if they contest accuracy of the data; if processing is unlawful and the data subject opposes erasure; if the Data Controller no longer needs the data but the data subject requires them for legal claims; or if the data subject has objected to processing. Restriction may be maintained until accuracy has been verified or it has been established whether the Data Controller's legitimate grounds override those of the data subject.

Right to data portability (GDPR Article 20)	Where processing is based on voluntary consent, the data subject has the right to receive their personal data in a machine-readable and conventional format, and to transmit those data to another controller without hindrance.
Right to object (GDPR Article 21)	Where the Data Controller processes personal data on the basis of its own or a third party's legitimate interests, the data subject has the right to object. Processing may continue only if the Data Controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds which override the interests, rights and freedoms of the data subject, or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

The data subject may submit a request in connection with the above rights in writing or electronically, addressed to the Data Controller, using any of the contact details listed in Section 1.

The Data Controller shall act on the request without undue delay, and at the latest within one month of receipt, and shall inform the data subject of the measures taken or, if no action is taken, of the reasons therefor and the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority or seek judicial remedy.

If necessary, taking into account the complexity and number of requests, this period may be extended by a further two months. The Data Controller shall notify the data subject of any such extension within one month of receipt of the request.

Where the data subject submitted the request electronically, the information shall be provided electronically unless otherwise requested.

If a request is manifestly unfounded or excessive, the Data Controller may charge a reasonable fee or refuse to act on the request.

The Data Controller shall communicate any rectification, erasure or restriction of processing to all recipients to whom personal data have been disclosed, unless this proves impossible or involves disproportionate effort, and shall inform the data subject of those recipients upon request.

4. Data Security Measures

The Data Controller ensures the security of processing and, to that end, implements the necessary and appropriate technical and organisational measures. It ensures the confidentiality (preventing unauthorised disclosure and access), integrity (preventing alteration and modification) and availability (ensuring accessibility and restorability) of personal data.

The Data Controller fulfils these requirements as follows:

- a) it ensures – by means of hardware and software – that unauthorised persons cannot access the systems used for processing;
- b) electronic data are stored in a closed, password-protected IT system;
- c) it prevents the possibility of unauthorised reading, copying, modification or removal of data carriers;
- d) personal data are processed only for the period necessary;
- e) IT compliance levels are regularly reviewed and – where necessary – improved.

5. Legal Remedies

If a data subject believes that the Data Controller has violated the applicable data protection requirements in the course of processing their personal data, they may:

- lodge a complaint with the Data Controller at the postal or email address set out in Section 1 and below:
